Post Office Report Not Good; We Visit Texarkana

Here is another report on how The Star and other Hope mail are faring since the local terminal and sorting section were moved to Texarkana's Oaklawn Station Post Office May 6—and it's not a good report by any means.

On Tuesday, May 16, no mail was received at the following points:

Columbus, Ozan, Washington, Fulton, in Hempstead county; and the same was true for Nashville and Saratoga in Howard county.

However, Saratoga did receive a mail of no consequence—it got The Star for Friday, May 12, on Tuesday, May 16—a matter of four days to cover less than 25 miles.

Mail subscribers are asked to continue reporting to our office all unreasonable delays in receiving The Star. Give us the names of at least three who missed receiving a copy on the next morning after publication—this being sufficient to establish the fact that delivery was missed on the entire postal route.

LaGrone Williams, of LaGrone Williams Hardware, had a good idea. He got Lloyd D. Coston, vice-president for sales, Fone Brothers, Little Rock, to mail him two letters on Tuesday to see whether they would arrive here Wednesday morning—and they did.

But we don't get that kind of service between Hope and its trade area residents.

At 5:30 Tuesday afternoon Circulation Manager Pod Rogers and I drove over to Texarkana's Oaklawn Post Office to watch the arrival of the postal truck from Hope and observe how the mail is sorted for return to our trade area.

Our mission was to observe and also drop a warning that if local delivery didn't improve The Star plans to invite other Hope firms to join it in a complaint in federal court against the postal authorities, looking to the return of the terminal and sorting section to our city.

We were treated cordially at Oaklawn Post Office and it was freely admitted Hope's trouble was not an isolated case. The Oaklawn terminal is under a deluge of mail and is having to bear all the mistakes that occur when an automobile factory assembly line is starting up with a new model car.

There is a reasonable doubt as to whether the Texarkana arrangement will ever give prompt service to the Hope-Nashville territory.

However, we will give the Texarkana folks the rest of this week to straighten out the matter, if that is humanly possible.

Elated by Victory, Wallace Improves at Hospital

By DON MCLEOD

Associated Press Writer
SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — George C. Wallace, elated by presidential primary triumphs in Michigan and Maryland, showed continued improvement from gunshot wounds today. But there was disagreement in medical circles regarding his chance of escaping permanent paralysis.

A medical bulletin giving the latest word on the condition of the Alabama governor, partially paralyzed since being shot Monday during an election rally, said:

"The governor spent a comfortable night. He is very alert and aware of his surroundings. He is reading the paper avidly. He is continuing to improve."

"Paralysis of the legs remains unchanged."

"At this time, despite reports to the contrary, the exact nature of injury to the spinal cord cannot be determined until surgery is performed."

The bulletin, issued by Dr. Joseph F. Schanno, appeared to challenge published reports that Wallace already faced permanent paralysis from the hips

Education Bill Carries Busing Delay

By JOHN BECKLER

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees agreed today on a compromise school busing provision that would delay for 18 months court desegregation orders requiring busing.

The compromise, reached near the end of an all-night bargaining session, cleared the way for final agreement by the conferees on a $20-billion higher education bill.

The bill would provide a wide variety of aid for college students and the institutions they attend and also establish a national institute of education to foster research on the learning process, and authorize $1.5 billion to help schools desegregate.

In reaching agreement, however, the conferees softened three tough House antibusing amendments, which could make it difficult to pass the measure on the House floor.

The House, by two overwhelming votes, has insisted the conferees stand by the House provisions.

Civil rights leaders, who oppose any limitation on the courts in desegregation cases, also are urging defeat of the bill when it comes up in the House and Senate. No voting is expected before next week.

The key antibusing amendment agreed to would prevent court busing orders, even those already issued, from going into effect until all appeals have been exhausted. As adopted by the House the provision would have been permanent law. The conference agreement puts a Jan. 1, 1974 expiration date on it.

Supporters of the compromise hope by that time the Supreme Court will have further clarified the busing controversy. It is scheduled to hear arguments in a Denver school case this fall and a decision is expected by the summer of 1973.

The agreement also includes language from the Senate bill urging the courts to place limits on busing based on the age of the children and the distance they would be required to travel. And it would prohibit busing a student to an inferior school.

The 18-month freeze on implementing court orders has a similar effect to the moratorium on new court busing orders requested by President Nixon two months ago. That bill, which still is pending in Congress, would flatly prevent the courts from issuing orders until June 30, 1973.

Earlier, Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary, told a reporter that the Post story was "unfounded."

Camp said the governor had asked him this morning to get the latest vote totals from the two primaries.

"He was in good spirits," Camp said. "He was already aware he'd won the primaries."

There had been indications that Wallace's gunshot wound affecting the spine might not be as serious as had been feared. Wallace had been paralyzed from the waist down since he was shot at a campaign rally in Laurel, Md. Monday afternoon. But his campaign manager said Tuesday night the governor has "some slight sensation in one leg."

The encouraging news came as Wallace was receiving word of his big doubleheader pri-

Campaign for Wallace Is to Continue

By LEE JONES

Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace's supporters are keeping up their drive for about a third of the state's national Democratic convention delegates.

"We're going right on. That's what they (Wallace headquarters in Montgomery, Ala.) told us to do," said Mrs. Lee Sullivan, the Texas organization's secretary.

Monday night, she was still trying to collect results of Saturday's county Democratic conventions, but couldn't raise many Wallaceites on the telephone.

"After this happened, everybody was going to church for prayers," Mrs. Sullivan explained, referring to the attempt on Wallace's life.

County conventions Saturday gave Wallace about 28 per cent of the delegates to the June 13 state Democratic convention, according to an Associated Press survey. The state convention will choose delegates to the national convention.

"My thought is that we should have 30 to 35 per cent of the delegates," said Hall Timanus, Houston lawyer and self-styled "Shivers Democrat" whom Wallace personally picked to head his Texas campaign.

The target is as many of Texas 130 national convention delegates as Wallace can get.

"All we are doing right now is holding our people together and getting out instructions for the state convention," Mrs. Sullivan said Tuesday.

Wallace's success in Texas thus far has resulted from seven weeks of hard work, a tightly controlled organization with no pretense of democratic procedure and a charismatic candidate.

Timanus says he agrees with that evaluation.

Wallace started late in Texas, kicking off his drive for precinct convention support March 17, just after he won the Florida primary. Insiders say he would not have bothered with Texas if he had lost in Florida. Precinct conventions were May 6. The state convention is June 13.

Despite a late start, Wallace showed nearly the strength at the precincts of the conservative Democrat "establishment," which pushed for an uncommitted delegation. And he apparently outdid the George McGovern organization, which started early in 1971.

Narcotics Arrest Made

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal narcotics officials say the case of the Belgian Connection began with a straightforward offer to a U.S. Army sergeant in Brussels: Smuggle 264 pounds of heroin into the United States and collect $96,000.

But the sergeant wasn't playing the smuggler's $50 million game. His tip touched off a three-month transatlantic cat-and-mouse game that ended Tuesday with the arrest of five men here and two in Paris.

John E. Ingersoll, director of the federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, said police in three countries cooperated in smashing what he termed one of the largest drug smuggling plots ever uncovered.

Ingersoll gave this account at a news conference:

Christian Frederick, 34, and Gilbert Ibarra, 35, approached the unnamed Army sergeant stationed at the NATO headquarters in Brussels.

They offered him the $96,000 and he alerted his superiors. An undercover agent from Ingersoll's bureau posed as another sergeant who frequently flew to the United States in a general's plane that was not searched by customs.

Wallace Shooting Pushes Action on Anti-Gun Measures

Wallace Scores in Michigan and Maryland Primaries

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Political Writer
Gov. George C. Wallace has scored overwhelming victories in the Michigan and Maryland presidential primaries, and his managers are mapping new contests in behalf of their wounded candidate, hoping to deadlock the Democratic National Convention.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey was resuming today the campaign he suspended when Wallace was shot; Sen. George McGovern said he would take up the race again Thursday.

Felled by a gunman and partially paralyzed, Wallace received 51 per cent of the Democratic vote in Michigan to score his first Northern victory as a presidential campaigner, and parlayed that with a 40 per cent victory showing in Maryland.

McGovern ran second in Michigan, with 27 per cent of the vote, Humphrey third with 16 per cent. In Maryland,

Bremer and Oswald Similar Men

By TERRY RYAN

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A quiet young man, a loner with few friends and alienated from his family, Arthur H. Bremer was many things in common with Lee Harvey Oswald and Sirhan B. Sirhan.

Such men act on impulse and feel compelled to change the world, says a psychiatrist often called upon by the Justice Department to examine would-be presidential assassins.

Bremer, 21, is accused of shooting Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace as Wallace campaigned Monday for the Democratic presidential nomination in Laurel, Md.

Sirhan was 24 when he fatally shot Sen. Robert F. Kennedy during the 1968 presidential campaign. Oswald was 23 when he assassinated President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Dr. David Abrahamson, a New York psychiatrist, has examined more than a dozen people who threatened the president or vice president. He has written a book about Oswald, "Our Violent Society," and researched the personality of assassins.

"These people have a very low level of frustration. They have to act out their impulses whenever the possibility is there," said Abrahamson. "They feel very threatened. To overcome being threatened, they try to change the world."

Assassins and potential assassins often come from broken homes or were otherwise separated from their families, he said. "They often feel alienated and have a need for revenge," he said.

"These people think of the world as a place of chaos and try to clean up the chaos by an extraordinary act such as killing," he said. "They are not really trying to kill a person. They are trying to change the world."

Abrahamson has never seen Bremer or personally examined Oswald or Sirhan, though he has studied their cases.

Bremer was arrested in Milwaukee last November for carrying a concealed weapon. Oswald was reduced one rank while he was in the Marine Corps for carrying an unauthorized personal weapon

Humphrey's second place share was 27 per cent; McGovern trailed him with 22 per cent.

The South Dakota senator said he was pleased with what he termed strong showings in both states.

Humphrey congratulated Wallace, but said he could draw no conclusions from Tuesday's two primaries. He said his prospects of winning a second Democratic nomination had not been damaged by the outcome.

On the Republican side in both states, President Nixon won easily over token opposition.

Wallace had been the favorite in both contests, with his opposition to school busing for desegregation a big plus in Michigan, and with the electorate in much of border state Maryland clearly receptive to his kind of Democratic protest.

But his margins were bigger than expected, and it appeared that votes of sympathy for a felled campaigner, and a stiffened resolve among his supporters, had bolstered his showings Tuesday.

The Democratic ballots in both states were crowded—11 entries in Maryland, seven in Michigan—but only Wallace, McGovern and Humphrey gained significant shares of the vote.

In Michigan, voters could choose the ballot of either party, and Democratic leaders said a massive crossover of Republicans had inflated the Wallace vote.

Connally in Running for No. 2 Spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, who says resigning Treasury Secretary John B. Connally can handle any public office in the land, has yet to ask Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to run a second time.

Set aside by side, these facts are encouraging renewed speculation that Connally, a conservative Texas Democrat, might wind up as Nixon's choice for second place on the 1972 Republican ticket.

Agnew, however, has publicly

Panel Calls Parley on Tough Bills

By H.L. SCHWARTZ III

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace may force the Nixon administration to introduce gun legislation it has been sitting on for months.

A gun-industry source said Tuesday he received private assurances from an administration official several weeks ago that the White House would continue to delay introducing legislation it promised to propose last fall and reportedly completed drafting in February.

But within hours of the shopping center gunshots that felled Wallace and wounded three others Monday a Senate subcommittee scheduled a closed session for this afternoon to consider a series of tough bills.

The meeting was called by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency.

7 Americans Die in Transport Shelling

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese shells smashed into a big U.S. Air Force transport and stored artillery ammunition and gasoline at the Kontum airfield in the central highlands today, killing seven Americans aboard the plane and injuring the other two.

The North Vietnamese also blew up the main ammunition dump at Pleiku, 20 miles south of Kontum, and on the northern front they cut the main north-south highway between Da Nang and Hue. Fighting continued west of Hue around Fire Base Bastogne, with one South Vietnamese unit reporting moderate casualties from a 150-round enemy mortar barrage.

The enemy gunners hit the C130 transport as it was taking off from the Kontum airfield. The plane cartwheeled and burst into flames.

Underground gasoline tanks at the western end of the airstrip exploded, sending flames 300 feet into the air, and thousands of rounds of artillery ammunition blasted off, shooting out flames and hurling canisters and shells high into the air.

The ammunition had been stacked at the end of the runway after it was unloaded Tuesday night and today from aircraft flying in from Pleiku. An American sergeant at the field said angrily:

"The South Vietnamese take the damned ammunition off the planes and leave it stacked up beside the airstrip instead of getting rid of it straight away. They just leave it there and it makes a beautiful target for the North Vietnamese. Last week much the same thing happened, and three truck loads with ammo were destroyed."

The U.S. Command announced that seven other Americans were wounded in earlier rocket attacks on the Kontum airfield and that two Army AH1 gunship helicopters were hit by enemy fire 33 miles northwest of Kontum on May 9, with one crewman killed, one missing and one wounded.

Thirty U.S. B52 bombers dropped 750 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese troop concentrations menacing Kontum. Some of the strikes were within two miles of the city limits.

Enemy sappers were blamed for the attack during the night on the ammunition dump two miles east of downtown Pleiku. Explosions continued throughout the day, and the danger and heat were so great that no one could get close enough to assess the damage.

On the northern front, the North Vietnamese drove government militiamen off a bridge on Highway 1 between Da Nang and Hue with a mortar and ground assault. Then they blew up the bridge, cutting the supply road to the troops on the northern front.

South Vietnamese infantrymen made two more forays to recapture Fire Bases Rakkasan and Helen, 15 miles west of Hue. These bases have been used off and on by the South Vietnamese and were abandoned several months ago before the North Vietnamese offensive began.

Schultz Treasury Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — John B. Connally's departure as secretary of the Treasury will leave the key economic job in the hands of George P. Schultz, the quiet but tough budget director, in a move indicating no immediate change in President Nixon's economic policies.

Connally, who in 16 turbulent months as the Treasury chief guided the nation through wage-price controls and the first dollar devaluation since 1934, announced Tuesday that he is resigning to return to private life. Nixon nominated Schultz, a former secretary of Labor, to take his place.

"There will be a changing of the guard but not a changing of the rules," Nixon told Connally, Schultz and top members of the Treasury Department staff at a meeting shortly after the Connally resignation was announced.

Schultz, former dean of the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business, brings none of the flamboyance that characterized Connally's reign as Treasury secretary, but the soft-spoken director of the Office of Management and Budget is known as a sharp administrator who is one of the Nixon's closest domestic advisers.

Schultz long expressed an aversion for wage-price controls before Nixon, with inflation soaring, reversed himself last Aug. 15 and imposed a wage-price freeze. That decision marked Connally's ascendancy as the President's top economic aide, but Schultz still maintained considerable power behind the scenes.

During Connally's time as Treasury secretary, the former Texas governor—the only Democrat in Nixon's cabinet—emphasized Nixon's flexibility in economic matters, a flexibility that Connally himself showed in office. Often Connally told newsmen that the President would be prepared to take any action necessary to get the economy going, reduce inflation and cut the high unemployment rate.

Schultz takes over at a time when the main policy actions have already been taken—the budget is expansive, monetary policy is easy, and wage-price controls are in place and scheduled to last at least through the end of the year.

But his toughest role may be in the field of international economics, where Connally made his mark more forcefully than anywhere else, causing some foreign countries to characterize him as a "bully boy" in negotiating international monetary questions.

Now, Schultz must take on the chore of negotiating monetary reform with other nations rebuilding the system that was formed only 25 years ago.

Connally's departure increased speculation that the President may tap him as a running mate. The secretary departed amid lavish praise from the President and said that "I have no political aspirations and no particular ambitions."

gun control could be reached for comment Tuesday.

But a source on Capitol Hill said he understood the White House was considering unveiling its own delayed proposals, perhaps within a day or two.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson was quick to call for tough new gun-control legislation after the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy in June 1968.

But the gun-control act which finally passed Congress months later was far weaker than Johnson sought, attesting to the election-year muscle of the country's 40 million gun owners, many of whom traditionally see any legislation as another small step toward confiscation.

High Nixon administration officials repeatedly have said they oppose restrictive legislation, but favor the goal of most current bills in Congress which are aimed at eliminating small, cheap handguns known as "Saturday night specials."

The administration was quick to announce after the shooting of Wallace that only because of the Gun Control Act of 1968 was it able to trace easily the weapon used.

Treasury officials said registry and reporting requirements of the act enabled them to trace the weapon, a .38-caliber pistol, to the alleged assailant within 10 minutes.

Monentous Presidential Decisions

By GAYLORD SHAW Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It began with presidential adviser Henry Kissinger jetting through the night sky to a secret rendezvous in Paris.

It ended a week later with a solemn President telling the nation he had decided to confront communist superpowers by mining North Vietnamese harbors.

During those seven days in May, Richard Nixon struggled with the most momentous decision of his presidency—a decision that posed the greatest potential for a world power showdown since the Cuban missile crisis a decade ago and threatened for a while to wreck his Moscow summit.

Nixon's seven days in May carried none of the sinister plotting of Fletcher Knebel's presidential novel with that title, but a series of interviews with White House aides and administration officials since his May 8 announcement discloses the high drama of presidential decision-making.

Although presidential spokesmen insist a final decision was not made until a few hours before the May 8 television address, the interviews indicated Nixon had settled on his specific course of action as much as six days earlier.

There also are indications that the mining of North Vietnam's harbors had been elevated to a top spot on the list of active options several weeks before the announcement, and that contingency preparations were made by the military in April.

But the interviews disclosed that it was during those seven days from May 2 to May 8 that the agony of decision-making squarely faced the President.

From official and unofficial sources, this reconstruction can be made:

During the early morning hours of Tuesday, May 2, foreign-policy adviser Kissinger and a few members of his National Security Council staff flew secretly to Paris where Kissinger met in private that day with North Vietnam's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho.

Nixon and Kissinger had high hopes for the secret session with Tho. It had been arranged at the urging of Soviet leaders with whom Kissinger had conferred at length during four days of secret talks in Moscow—an indication to them that fruitful negotiations might be in the offering.

But Kissinger soon found that no progress would be made. As he recounted later:

"We were confronted by the reading to us of the published Communist statement. It had taken us six months to set up the meeting and innumerable exchanges, and when we got there, what we heard could have been clipped from a newspaper and sent to us in the mail."

Nixon, by several accounts, was furious. As Kissinger flew home from Paris Tuesday afternoon, Nixon retired to his hideaway suite in the Executive Office Building, across the street from the White House, where he began pondering what to do.

By dinnertime, Kissinger was back. Nixon, Kissinger and Kissinger's No. 2 man, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., drove to the Washington Navy Yard where they boarded the squat, 105-foot presidential yacht, the U.S.S. Sequoia.

At dusk they cruised the Potomac River below Washington, with Kissinger delivering a full report on the latest Paris frustrations. The talk turned to options, with Kissinger—in his usual fashion—outlining the pros and cons of various possible steps.

It was at this point, according to most indications, that the President made his tentative decision to mine the harbors through which most Soviet supplies flowed.

But he ordered Kissinger's National Security Council staff to prepare detailed studies on alternatives—and on the impact each choice would have on U.S.-Soviet relations and the scheduled Moscow summit.

Then, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 3-5, Nixon huddled repeatedly in his Executive Office Building suite with his closest advisers—Kissinger and Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally.

Honor Graduate

Carol Anthony, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Anthony of Hope, has been named a Magna Cum Laude graduate of Ouachita Baptist University. To achieve this distinction, Miss Anthony maintained at least a 3.5 grade average on a 4-point scale throughout her college career.

A math major at Ouachita, Miss Anthony was treasurer of Chi Delta social club and was a member of Alpha Chi honor society and Sigma Gamma Sigma math honor society.

Miss Anthony received her bachelor of science degree during commencement ceremonies May 6.

While Kissinger and his staff traced the probable diplomatic and military repercussions, the tall Texan assayed for Nixon the likely domestic reaction. Connally, who has since bisected his resignation from the Cabinet, firmly advocated strong steps such as mining.

Nixon began to work on the words he would use to tell the American people of his decision. And, after another round of meetings with Connally and Kissinger on Friday, the President boarded a helicopter for the 20-minute flight to Camp David.

On Friday night and Saturday morning, Nixon retired to nearby Birch Cabin where, sitting in a high-backed, blue easy chair and with his feet propped on an ottoman, he dictated a draft of his speech from notes scrawled on yellow legal pads.

To his exasperation, he learned on Saturday that, because of a dictating-machine foul up, one of the three tapes he consumed was mostly blank. With appropriate comments about the machine, he dictated that portion of the draft again from his notes.

At this time, only five or six persons in government knew of the President's plan. The list grew by one about noon on Saturday, when a White House aide arrived at the compound to help with the speech.

According to the aide, who would not allow use of his name, the President was specific about what he wanted:

"A very businesslike, very factual, short, hard-hitting speech cut down to the bare essentials." The aide said he was told to call no one for information or advice.

The aide then set to work embellishing the speech, changing words here and there and adding new phrases. But when the draft came back from Nixon Saturday night, the aide found "where I had done so he reverted back to his chosen words."

The President also eliminated excess material, insisting, the aide said, "on keeping it sparse and tight."

For example, references to the political and personal implications of his decision were scratched because "he didn't want to surround the announcement or the decision with a great atmosphere of crisis."

Also cut were phrases which the aide said Nixon considered divisive, including one that focused on "how political advantage might accrue to a president who chose an immediate pullout."

But Nixon scribbled on the margins of the draft some phrases he apparently had decided upon while walking through the woods.

They included his declaration that: "There is only one way to stop the killing and that is to keep the weapons of war out of the hands of the international outlaws of North Vietnam."

Early Sunday, Nixon telephoned Secretary of State William P. Rogers and told him to cut short his series of talks with European leaders and return to Washington for a National Security Council meeting on Monday.

Kissinger and Nixon went over the draft again, with Kissinger providing some technical points on international law which were woven into paragraphs describing the mining and the promised interdiction of war supplies.

After a leisurely dinner with his family, Nixon flew back to the White House Sunday night and proceeded Monday to the 9 a.m. meeting of his National Security Council.

There, while such officials as Rogers, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, Central Intelligence Agency director Richard Helms and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew listened grimly, the President outlined what he planned to do.

Jury Convicts May

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Circuit Court jury deliberated less than 30 minutes Tuesday before convicting Alderman John O. May of North Little Rock of performing an abortion at his home. He was sentenced to four years in prison and fined $1,000.

Earlier Tuesday, Mrs. Francis D. Matthews of North Little Rock testified that she was with May in DeValls Bluff on Oct. 9, 1970, the day May allegedly performed the abortion.

May testified Tuesday that he had never seen Mrs. Beverly Kaye Kuykendall, the girl who alleged that May performed an abortion on her.

Mrs. Kuykendall testified Monday that May performed an abortion on her about 6:30 p.m. on Oct. 9, 1970.

suggested that the choice may not be entirely Nixon's.

In an April 28 question-and-answer session with students at the University of Maine, Agnew said he is not even sure he would want the No. 2 job for another four years.

Agnew also emphasized that he would step aside gracefully—and campaign hard for the GOP ticket—should Nixon judge that someone else could provide greater appeal as a running mate.

In announcing Tuesday that Connally is resigning after 18 months at Treasury, Nixon told newsmen the Texan was "the architect of the new economic policy," leader of the fight against inflation, chief negotiator of international monetary accords and "a tower of strength for the President."

Looking ahead to the November balloting, it can be assumed that Nixon would welcome Connally's aid in attempting to carry Texas—a state that eluded him in 1960 and 1968. And a Connally on the ticket might swing greater weight with Texans than one standing in the wings.

After the President personally announced Connally's impending resignation, Nixon told some three dozen top Treasury officials that "no member of the Cabinet has been more closely associated with me in a personal sense."

Nixon reported he solicited Connally's advice not only on Treasury matters but on a broad range of national and international concerns and said the Texan has the qualities he seeks in a close adviser.

"When the going is the toughest," said the President, "Secretary Connally is at his best."

Connally responded that he has the "profoundest admiration" for Nixon and gives complete support to his policies, foreign and domestic.

Assailant's Brother Is Wanted Man

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The brother of the man charged with shooting Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, William Allen Bremer, is wanted in Florida on charges of fraud in connection with a weight-reducing scheme, authorities said Tuesday.

Arthur H. Bremer, 21, of Milwaukee has been charged with Monday's shooting of Wallace. William Bremer was arrested in Arkansas.

A family source said the two Bremers were related. Asst. State Atty. Joseph Nazzaro said that more than 100 charges of fraud and one of grand larceny are pending in Miami against William Bremer, 32, of Milwaukee.

The charges stem from complaints filed by women who signed up for a $38 weight reducing course at Figure Form Studios in Miami only to find the doors closed and the equipment gone.

Authorities said that William Bremer was arrested March 24 in Fort Smith, Ark., on charges of mail fraud in connection with a similar scheme in Gainesville, Fla. Nazzaro said he would travel to Little Rock May 23 to attend an extradition hearing in which Florida authorities will attempt to have William Bremer returned to Florida to face the fraud charges.

Reached at his home in Milwaukee, another of the four Bremer brothers, Theodore, 34, said, "I hate to admit it but William is my brother. When it rains, it really rains hard."

The ringneck actually comes from China but has adapted so well that he is largely responsible for the present high interest in upland bird shooting.

North's holding is a bare minimum for a limit jump raise to three hearts. He has 11 high-card points but his distribution is that most unattractive 4-3-3-3.

South has no problem with the play of the hand after West opens the queen of clubs and East signals come-on with the eight. He sees that he must keep East out of the lead and just lets West hold the trick. West continues clubs. South wins and leads a trump. West takes his ace and leads a third club which South ruffs. South draws the rest of the trumps, cashes the diamonds while making sure to take the last one in dummy. leads a spade and sticks in the nine. West wins and is caught in an end play. He must either lead from the king of spades or give South a ruff and discard.

Strangely enough this contract can be beaten and actually was in an early match in this year's Vanderbilt Cup. Jacqui Mitchell of New York opened the queen of clubs but Mary Jane Farrell of Los Angeles, the world's leading woman bridge player, covered with the king. South had to win the trick.

Later on when Jacqui got in with the trump ace she led the nine of clubs. Mary Jane covered with the 10 and had obtained the lead. She fired a spade and while South played the nine it did him no good. Jacqui got out with the jack of clubs and waited for her second spade trick.

Satin Is Big Favorite In Evening Clothes

By ANN HENCKEN

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Whether it's an extravagant Donald Brooks evening dress or a John Kloss nightgown, nobody's going to feel like a wall flower in this season's evening clothes.

Satin is a big fabric for "important" gowns—with full, gathered satin skirts. Brooks, for fall, adds a black velvet bodice to a sweep of pink satin skirt for his infantia dress.

Oscar de la Renta builds his Boutique line dress offering around dark, solid satin skirts and blouses topped with cardigan sweaters. In fact, this cardigan of his goes over just about everything—except a group of embroidered chiffon prints.

Bill Blass creates a sumptuous sportswear feeling with his beige cashmere sweater top over a white satin skirt.

"I think a woman likes the look of cashmere and satin, and at the same time, she likes that," said Blass, after his Bill Blass Ltd. show, pointing to a model dressed like a bright bird in a vibrant dress of red, green and black velvet, with feather-trim jacket.

Showstoppers like this are very much visible. Many have those wide dolman sleeves. For Brooks, the knock'em dead look means a crystal chemise dress, just a cut of silver light that couldn't be ignored at a party, unless everyone put on blinders.

However, the quiet pale dresses offered for fall can stop the show in their own way.

Antique Show At Fair Park Sunday

The Hempstead County Antique Collectors Club will sponsor an Antique show Sunday, May 21, in the Arts and Craft Building at Fair Park.

Many items will be displayed and visitors will be able to visit several exhibits.

A general store will offer various items for sale including lye soap made by club members.

A barber shop will be featured, also a one room school complete with a teacher.

The saloon will be open and will display old bottles and offer lemonade for sale. Hot rolls will be offered for sale from the kitchen.

This will be the first show of its kind in this area. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A gnarled and ancient African tree was the star of a delightful television special on NBC Tuesday night.

The tree, the baobab, grows in Kenya and some still standing are believed to be 2,000 years old. For many birds, insects, reptiles and animals, it is really a tree of life.

Orson Welles, the narrator, described the tree of the special as "a busy apartment block." Alan and Joan Root picked one tree, focused their cameras on it through the wet and dry seasons. They found as many as 20 different species of birds nesting in that one.

They used time-lapse photography to show the complicated nests built by some species. They reported the courting habits of others. They even put glass on one side of a hollow trunk and were able to show the nesting habits of the red-beaked hornbill.

There was also special attention given to a bird called the honey guide as it led native honey hunters to bees nests. After the men had removed the combs, they were careful to leave a choice portion as a reward for the bird.

CBS bumped a "Glen Campbell Show" rerun early in the evening for an hour-long briefing on the state of the nation, "Where We Stand." It seemed designed to help the public understand the motives and the importance of President Nixon's impending visit to Russia.

There were several short interviews—with a retired U.S. general, a British military expert and an economist—plus some animated charts and film clips, but the hour was essentially a lecture by correspondent Charles Collingwood on the state of the nation in competitive areas of military preparedness, diplomacy, economics and its rank in world leadership.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The World Almanac calls that prior to his election in 1860 Abraham Lincoln received a letter from Grace Bedell, 11, suggesting that he grow whiskers because "All the ladies like whiskers and they would tease their husbands to vote for you." Lincoln started his beard after his election, he became the first U.S. president to have one.

Blass shows the pale look in a peach and brown crepe outfit with cardigan jacket.

The Brooks collection runs from $200 to $5,000. But if you're not up to those designer prices you might want to slip into a John Kloss for Cira nightgown for your evening out. Others have done it, and the prices are $8 to $40.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

Shabby Solution to a Problem

Dear Helen:
I've read that a girl can get as much as $5,000 for a perfect, newborn white baby, if she finds a couple who wants one bad enough. It's a good business.

I wouldn't mind being pg for that kind of cash. Please give my name and address to people who write that they're desperate to adopt but can't find a baby. — WANTING TO HELP

Dear W.T.H.:

NO!!!
What you suggest is illegal, immoral—and fattening. —H.

Dear Helen:
I can see a girl making one mistake and deciding to keep her child, but when she has three or so out of wedlock—often with different fathers—and goes on welfare to support them, it's time to get tough.

Why don't they make a rule that single women on welfare must give up any baby after the first illegitimate one? There are so many couples who want to adopt these days and can't find children. A don't-care mother wouldn't provide a good home—and an unmarried woman who doesn't take precautions is certainly "don't-care."

Seems a logical way to help everyone, including the child. Maybe it would inspire those careless women to take The Pill which is offered free to welfare people. —T.D.

Dear T.:

Your plan might inspire an even greater black market in white babies. If a woman knows she must give up her child, she might try for the highest bidder (and many are bidding these days — adoptable Caucasian babies being very scarce).

It could also place considerably more "hard-to-adopt" children in institutions or inadequate temporary homes. Besides, this "solution" strikes me as cold-blooded. What do others think? —H.

Dear Helen:

After he read about The International Society of Girl Watchers in our paper, my husband joined. He got some little adhesive-backed paper stickers that men are supposed to attach to women's clothes when they aren't looking. The "Watchable Awards" say complimentary things, but it still burns me that my husband would look at an unknown girl so intently that he'd want to give her an award.

He's learned all the techniques for girl watching, so that no one knows, not even his wife. But I find awards on my clothes quite often.

Now, he says he's going to invent some "Unwatchable Awards" for women who look grubby, or are in hair rollers, or expose fat knees in hot pants. ...And if somebody finds out who stuck one of these on her, he'll be scalped.

What do you do with a man like that? —WATCHING A WATCHER

Dear WAW:

So long as he sticks to "Watchable Awards" (especially for you), and maintains a hands-off policy (except for you), consider him an honest appreciator.

But discourage the "Unwatchable Awards". Joe Beagin, president of the "International Society of Girl Watchers" might drum him out of the organization. —H.

Dear Helen:

I'm glad you made it clear to your readers that men who like to wear women's clothing are usually NOT homosexuals. My husband is a manly guy who doesn't need a counselor. Yet he likes the beauty and comfort of women's clothes, and sometimes we switch outfits. If I appear in his jeans and shirt—who cares? But if he were discovered in MY dresses and nylons—what a scandal! Who knows how much of this ostracism comes from centuries of programmed habit (certain things are expected of men and anything "effeminate" is bad—for "feminine" was always inferior). Isn't this, in a way, the same kind of twisted thinking that makes it just great if a man takes a younger wife, but if a woman falls for a much younger man, the whole world smirks.

How come one action shocks, and the same action in the opposite sex is perfectly okay? —ONCE UPSET BUT NOT NOW

Dear OUBNN:
Good question. I doubt that even psychiatrists could answer it fully, but I think you came close when you suggested "centuries of programming." —H.

Announces Fund Drive

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A nonprofit consumer group has begun a membership and fund-raising drive to increase the organization's base of support and provide operating funds.

Fred Cowan, director of Arkansas Consumer Research, said in announcing the drive that the organization planned to study what he considered the high cost of prescription drugs in the state.

Cowan also said the group would investigate the Arkansas property tax system and a state agency which he did not identify "that appears not to be fulfilling its responsibilities."

Won't Discuss Strategy

DETROIT (AP) — Billy Martin says he won't discuss strategy with newsmen anymore because his off-the-record information is being published.

"I'm not going to tell the whole world what I do," the angered Detroit manager said Tuesday night after his Tigers lost 8-3 to Baltimore.

"I've been fair up to now. I've talked strategy to help you guys (reporters) out so that you'll understand the game better. But then the next day I read it in the paper."

"Don't you think other clubs read those things? They probably get clippings sent from people who do read them."

"Every time I pull a trick move I read it in the paper. Let's just forget about strategy because from now on I'm just going to talk about what happened in the game."

He said one of his hitting strategies was described in a national sports newspaper and has resulted in a number of teams adjusting their infield accordingly.

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP)—Trainer Homer Pardue isn't ready to predict a Preakness victory for No Le Haze, but he's going to at least try a different racing strategy against Riva Ridge.

"We're going to lay up real close this time," Pardue said of Saturday's 1 3/16-mile Preakness, "and if there's no pace, we're going to force it. My horse has speed, if we want to use it."

No Le Haze was the runnerup to Riva Ridge in the Kentucky Derby, finishing 3/4 lengths behind at the end of the 1 1/4-mile test following a late rush.

Although No Le Haze made up three lengths in the stretch, Riva Ridge was under a hand ride by Ron Turcotte and not exactly being pushed.

"We could have been too far off the pace," Pardue said. "Not at the half-mile pole, but we were at the three-eighths pole after setting back too long. We didn't move quick enough."

Pardue didn't rap jockey Phil Rubbicco, who previously rode No Le Haze in winning the Arkansas and Louisiana derbies, but merely observed: "This time we'll move quicker."

Upper Case will run as an entry with Riva Ridge, but Pardue doesn't think trainer Lucien Laurin will use Upper Case as a "rabbit" to force the pace.

Riva Ridge, who has started only four times this year and is well rested, is given a good chance to win the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes, on June 10, to become the first Triple Crown winner since 1948.

Pardue isn't ready to concede that Riva Ridge, a 10-time winner in 13 career starts, is in the super horse category, but observes: "I'll have more to say about that after Saturday."

Jockey Denied License Application

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Racing Board Tuesday denied an application for a license to ride in Illinois by jockey Jon Kunitake of Hawaii.

The board also upheld until May 25 the suspension of jockey Lonnie Ray.

Kunitake and Ray both rode at the recent racing meet at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs.

The Illinois board said Kunitake was a suspect in a battery case in November at Sportsman's Park.

Action against Ray resulted from his failure to fulfill engagements at Hawthorne for two straight days last month. He also disappeared the final day of Sportsman's meeting last fall and subsequently was suspended and fined $200.

Ray was suspended 30 days for failing to appear for assignments at Hawthorne. This period will be up May 25.

"Kunitake's case is a question of disqualification because of the people he associates with," said Alexander MacArthur, board chairman.

Tuesday Little League Winners

In Little League play last night at K-Park Walker's Refrigeration won over Greening-Ellis by a score of 15 to 0, in the first game and the second game was won by Hope Auto beating Sheriff's 13 to 5.

Robert Smith and Ken Johnson were the pitchers for Walker's Refrigeration. Greening-Ellis used Ricky Damon and Author Brown on the mound. Leading all hitters for the winners was Gary Sinyard collecting 1 double.

Author Brown was the leading hitter for the losers getting 1 hit. In the second game of the evening Scott Rowland was the pitcher for the Hope Auto, and Dwain Mayfield, T. Powers, Willis Williams and Randy Ellgedge saw mound duty for the Sheriff's.

Hitters for the winners were Jim Henley going for 3 and 4 and Rufus Herndon going 3 for 5, and the best hitters for the losers were T. Powers and Dwain Mayfield both collecting 2 hits.

Thursday night games will be Barry's Gro. vs CBC at 6:30 p.m. and Greening-Ellis vs Hope Auto in the second game of the night

Hockey Team Waiting For New Coach

BUFFALO (AP) — The Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League were waiting today to hear whether Joe Crozier wants to be their next head coach.

George "Punch" Imlach gave up the post Tuesday, citing health reasons, but said he would continue as the club's general manager.

Imlach, 51, suffered a severe heart attack Jan. 7 and remains under doctor's orders to avoid fatigue.

Commenting on his decision to relinquish the coaching job, he said, "I shall miss coaching, as I've always loved it, but the time has come that it has got to be one or the other."

As for his successor as Coach, Imlach said, "Crozier is our choice. He deserves it."

Crozier, coach of Buffalo's farm club, the Cincinnati Swords, served as the Sabres' interim coach for 37 games last season while Imlach recuperated.

Monday Hits Three Consecutive Homers

BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"It was too much Monday on Tuesday."

That, Philadelphia Manager Frank Lucchesi sighed, was the only way to describe what Chicago's Rick Monday did to his Phillies Tuesday night.

In the first inning, Monday hit a home run. In the third inning, Monday hit a home run.

In the fifth inning, Monday hit a home run. In the seventh inning—nope. Monday fouled out.

"It took me six years to have a night like this," the 26-year-old center fielder said after his three consecutive homers, the first one a three-run blast, powered the Cubs to an 8-1 victory. "I don't know if I'll ever have another."

In other National League action, Pittsburgh edged St. Louis 4-3, Houston topped Atlanta 6-5, the New York Mets defeated Montreal 7-3, Los Angeles whipped San Diego 2-0 and Cincinnati swept a two-night double-header from San Francisco, 4-3 and 2-0.

"I've never been in a position in the lineup for home run hitting," said Monday, who once hit three in a game with the defunct Mobile club of the Southern League in 1966, was brought up to Kansas City later that season and was acquired by the Cubs this year in a pre-season trade with Oakland. "I batted second, then eighth and finally, last season, I was platooned."

All but lost in Monday's heroics was a brilliant performance by teammate Burt Hooton. The rookie pitcher tamed the Phillies on just three hits. One of them, though, was Greg Luzinski's sixth homer. "I may dream about that one," said the knuckle-curling right-hander, who threw a no-hitter at Philadelphia on the second day of the season.

Monday said he had ideas of a fourth homer when he stepped to the plate in the seventh inning. "I didn't know how many had ever hit four home runs in one game but I knew you could count them on the fingers of both hands. I was up there to give it a go."

So after hitting three homers, equalling a feat achieved 190 times before, Monday failed to do what nine others had done—four in a game. "I took a bad swing at a fastball," he shrugged.

Rich Hebner's three-run homer capped a four-run first inning for the Pirates that sent the Cards tumbling to their sixth straight setback.

Luke Walker went six innings—his longest stint of the season—to pick up the victory. "It was sure nice when we got those four runs in the first inning," he said. "When you have a lead like that you don't have to be as careful. And when you haven't pitched much, it becomes even more important."

Orlando Cepeda had a pretty good night at the plate for the Braves—but not good enough. He hit a pair of homers to give Atlanta a 5-3 lead. But Houston struggled back within a run, then won it—and gave unbeaten reliever Jim Ray his sixth triumph—in the eighth as Bob Watson tripled home the tying run and scored the winner on Bobby Fenwick's double.

Tom Seaver also became a six-game winner as the Mets winning their fifth in a row and 18th in the last 23, pounced on the Expos for four runs in the second inning, two of them on Bud Harrelson's double, to widen their National League East lead to four games.

The Dodgers, remaining a game ahead of second-place Houston in the West, got a four-hitter from Bill Singer and extra-base, run-scoring hits from

by the Cubs this year in a pre-season trade with Oakland. "I batted second, then eighth and finally, last season, I was platooned."

Nicklaus and Palmer Return to Action

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer return to action this week to challenge defending champion Lee Trevino in the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Open Golf Classic.

Nicklaus and Palmer, the dominant figures in the game for the past decade, both filed late entries that came as mild—but very pleasant—surprises to the sponsors of this rich event which begins Thursday on a spanking new layout.

Both have been out of action for two weeks.

It was in this tournament—but on a different course—that Trevino last year started a 58-national streak that culminated in his sweep of the American, Canadian and British Open crowns.

The site is the new South Course at the Colonial Country Club, a 7,175-yard, par 72 layout that is some 600 yards longer than the course on which Trevino won. It's so new, and the fairway grass so sparse, that so-called winter rules will be in effect with the players allowed to lift, clean and place balls on the fairway.

The field of 147 is very strong. Only 11 spots were open for qualifiers. Most of the season's leading money winners are on hand. Billy Casper and Gary Player, both out of the country, are among the exceptions.

Among the standouts are Jerry Heard, the streaking youngster who scored his second victory of the season last week-end, and George Archer.

Also in the field are Fred Marti, Frank Beard, Tommy Aaron, Dave Hill and Tom Weiskopf.

Dave Eichelberger, Bobby Nichols, Grier Jones and Larry Hinson were late withdrawals.

Girls Softball League Opens

The Girls Softball League officially opened Monday evening in Key Field.

In the opener, TG&Y Blue defeated TG&Y Orange 12 to 2 in the Midget Division. This division consists of Grades 2, 3 and 4.

In the Junior Division, Grades 5 and 6, Butane Gas won over Linnbert's 14 to 9.

League games are played on Monday and Saturday nights. Midget games start at 6 p.m., Junior games at 7:15 and Senior Division at 8:30 p.m.

Saturday, May 20 games are: TG&Y Green vs TY&Y Red; Harold Hendrix team vs Hope Lion Service and Monts Seed Store vs Tol-E-Tex.

Gruelling Day for Manager

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Sometimes the life of a baseball manager can be gruelling off the field.

Take Don Zimmer's Tuesday for example.

The San Diego Padres' first-year manager left here shortly before Monday night's game to fly to Florida to testify for the government in an income tax case.

Zimmer arrived in St. Petersburg at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, sat for six hours, then was told that his testimony wasn't needed. He got back on a plane and arrived in the San Diego dugout in the third inning.

Just in time to see the Los Angeles Dodgers beat his Padres 2-0.

Politics and Sports: The Games People Play

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There are still great numbers of well-meaning journalists who say there is no place for writing about politics on the sports pages.

That would be so if there were no politics in sports. Or if politics weren't in fact influenced by sports. Or if politicians and generals and coaches alike didn't use sport for their own self-serving purposes, to exploit "games" as a symbol of so-called patriotic character-building.

Unless one has been locked in a closet, one cannot hide from the fact that issues of race, of labor negotiations, of drug abuse, of women's rights, of civil liberties, of coaching authoritarianism, of hypocrisy in college recruiting must all be reported along with scores and game details.

It goes further than simply lumping the playing of the national anthem with the opening kickoff.

And it is not a new thing. In 1919, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, then superintendent of West Point, ordered that this saying be carved on the stone portals of the gymnasium there: "Upon the fields of friendly strife are sown the seeds that, upon other fields, on other days, will bear the fruits of victory."

In 1960, Robert Kennedy, speaking at a football coaches' dinner, said, "Except for war, there is nothing in American life which trains a boy better for life than football."

If what these two respected national leaders have said is true—and they are not alone—then of course sport transcends the making of homecoming floats. It seems not to be stretching the point to say that our views of sport influence our national and international policies.

In 1968, President Richard Nixon said in an interview, "Anybody in politics must have great competitive instincts. . . That's the world of sports. That's the world of politics. I guess you can say, that's life itself."

The potential danger here, says Dr. Bruce Mazlish, author of the new book, "In Search of Nixon: A Psychohistorical Inquiry," is getting reality and politics confused with the game of football.

PRESIDENT NIXON visits the Washington Redskins' training camp.

President Nixon, for example, had taken for himself the code name, "The Quarterback," when advising Henry Kissinger in secret negotiations with the North Vietnamese. He described his new economic policy as "my game plan." President Nixon's sincere interest in football as a fan, as well as his intensity as a Whittier College football player "with two left feet" give more evidence of his meshing football with life and politics.

The fixation with being "No. 1" is of concern to the President, as shown in the controversy he stirred in 1969 when he conferred that mythical title upon the University of Texas football team. One critic of the Vietnam war, Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., has made a point of that.

In a New Yorker magazine article last January, Fulbright wrote: "Perhaps our national tendency to extol competition rather than cooperation as a social virtue and our preoccupation with our primacy—with being the 'biggest,' the 'greatest' nation—suggest an underlying lack of confidence in ourselves, a supposition that unless we are 'No. 1' we will be nothing."

One detects this cast of mind in President Johnson's determination that he would not be "the first American president to lose a war," and President Nixon's spectre of America as "a pitiful, helpless giant." The perpetuation of the Vietnam war is the most terrible and fateful manifestation of the determination to prove we are "No. 1."

Our sports pages have rarely questioned the "character-building" clichés and the pernicious influences of the fierce desire to win at any cost, of emphasizing the hairy-chestedness over the humane, of treating a game as if it is a war in microcosm.

Sports ideally is a diversion, a cheerful way to temporarily relieve tensions while, perhaps, building a muscle and, hopefully, shedding a pound. Maybe, too, learning something about stick-to-itiveness.

Sports pages, however, have too often lost sight of the casual and lovely aspects of sport. They have treated games as enormously important in themselves but have missed the point of how we've distorted the essence of the games.

Ideally, sportswriting should deal solely with the joys of sweat. Ideally, there should be no politics in sport, no racism in sport, no viewing of sport as a metaphor for war.

Yet our generals and politicians and coaches will have none of that. Shouldn't sports pages reflect this, along with the box scores?

Emmet School Basketball Banquet

The Emmet School basketball banquet was held Saturday night, May 13, in the high school auditorium.

Coach Frank Faulkner recognized members of the Student Council who had worked hard in preparing for the banquet. They were Vicki Faulkner, Donnie Booker, Mary McKillion, Mary Harris, Jimmy Don Hill, Marty Dougan, Johnny Davidson, Carolyn Ferguson, Timmy Chambliss, Cathy Whetstone, Eddie Harris and Tina Harris.

Bus drivers, Berry Faulkner and Floyd Dougan, were also recognized.

Junior girls receiving recognition were Sandra Blount, Pam Dougan, Barbara Hale, Lynn Ottwell, Rhonda Ridling, Tina Harris, Debra Block, Carlene Harris, Sandra McClellan, Juanita McKillion, Debra Ottwell, Randy Pankey, Vicki Snell, and Cathy Arnett. Carlene Harris and Juanita McKillion received awards for being selected All County Forward and All County Guard.

Junior boys receiving recognition were Timmy Chambliss, Corky Pankey, James Love, Harold Reed, Ricky Block, Jimmy Allen, Eugene Hopson, Ronnie Fore, Robert Love, Donnie Booker, Ronald McClellan, Russell McBride, Darrell Greene, and Russell Greene. Russell McBride and Darrell Greene received all Nevada County Awards.

Senior Girls receiving recognition were Pam Arnett, Carolyn Ferguson, Mary McKillion, Debbie Harden, Anita Dougan, Toni Burke, Mary Harris, Vicki Faulkner, and Lou Lessig.

Senior Boys receiving jackets were Keith Wicker, Carl Sams, Gerald McClellan, Darwin Ferguson, Marty Dougan, Fred Harris, Greg Stuart, Jimmy Hill, Jackie Harris, Vernon Block and Tommy McBride.

Area 13-all District Award went to Anita Dougan.

Gene M. Ross gave special recognition to Coach Faulkner for his outstanding work and leadership and closed with the benediction.

handsome, soft-spoken Gary. "There are three boys and we've more or less agreed that one of us is going to accomplish what he tried so long and so hard to do.

"Mother not only agrees, she has encouraged us to develop the talent he left us. We are doing that, on our own and mostly without help from anybody.

"Indianapolis is a tradition to the Bettenhausens, sort of like a second home. For 13 years while Dad was racing in the 500, we spent the month of May at the Speedway. Even as kids, we realized the frustrations, the fleeting joys and the ups and downs of the drivers. We could always tell when Dad had a good day. He'd bring us candy.

"Then he was killed while doing another driver a favor. He was always doing favors for other drivers, like driving their cars to help them solve minor problems. He was so good that he was always being asked to do that.

"On the morning we left our farm in Tinley Park, Ill., to go to the Speedway for the 1961 race, mother made Dad promise he wouldn't get in anybody else's car.

"But Paul Russo had spent the winter at our farm helping us build a grain curing bin. He worked his hind legs off helping us, particularly with the welding. He was good at that.

"So we got to the Speedway and Dad was again the hottest driver around....

"Russo was having problems with his car, and he asked Dad to take it out for a few laps to see if he could find out what was wrong. Until then, Dad had kept his promise; he hadn't been in a car other than his own for the first time since he hit the Speedway in 1946.

"So he figured he owed Russo a favor because of all the work he had done for us on the farm. It is history now. Dad had driven Paul's car only three laps when it came apart and he was killed.

"I'm not a fatalist, but I think Dad's ticket was written that day. Otherwise, who is to say that if Russo had driven the car three more laps, he wouldn't have been killed."

At 30, Gary is the oldest of the three Bettenhausen sons. The others are Merle and Tony

Ali Match Off Again

BALTIMORE (AP) — The on-again, off-again charity exhibition match of former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali is off again.

The exhibition match for the benefit of sickle cell anemia research originally was set for Saturday in Washington, D.C. but promoters announced that it would be moved to Baltimore's Civic Center after they failed to reach an agreement with the Washington Armory Board on division of the gate.

Tuesday, the Maryland State Athletic Commission, put a veto on that plan too.

Livingston In Tennis Semifinals

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Margaret Livingston of Birmingham, Ala., moved into the semifinals of two brackets of the 20th annual Southern Senior Womens Tennis Championships today.

She defeated fourth-seeded Fran Newman of Atlanta, Ga., 6-0, 6-0 in the 45-and-over bracket. Earlier she captured a quarter final match from second-ranked and defending champ Olga Palafox of Little Rock, Ark., in the 35-and-over bracket.

Women's doubles play Tuesday saw only one of the top-ranked teams stay alive in the 35-and-over bracket. Gloria Payne of Macon, Ga., and Charlene Grafton of Pensacola, Fla., moved into semifinals with two victories.

McClellan Made Speech In 1904

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sen. John Little McClellan remembers that he gave his first political speech when he was eight years old, in 1904, in the wood pile at his Grant County home.

His father had just taken him to hear Jeff Davis, then running for a third term as governor, give one of his famous orations.

"The next morning after hearing Jeff Davis' speech, I went out to the wood pile, stuck sticks of stove wood up on end for my audience and I got up on the chop block and I made the darndest speech for Jeff Davis that ever went unrecorded," says McClellan.

The senator, now 76, recalled the story as he relaxed in his headquarters at the end of a long day of campaigning in which he added to the list of innumerable speeches he has made since 1904.

Munching on an apple he had picked up along the campaign trail during the day, McClellan told of his second political speech.

This one, also in 1904, was delivered at exercises on the last day of school in the spring. Angered by a whipping his son had been given earlier by the Republican schoolmaster, McClellan recalls, the senator's father wrote the speech and it gave "the devil" to President Theodore Roosevelt.

A copy of that speech was sent to Congressman John S. Little, the representative of Arkansas' 3rd District for whom McClellan was named. Little's letter acknowledging receipt of the speech is framed and hanging on the wall of McClellan's Washington office.

"Among other things, he said in the letter, 'I have no doubt that you, too, will some day distinguish yourself as a citizen and a public man,'" McClellan said. "From that minute, I became a candidate for the Congress of the United States."

Today, after two terms in the U.S. House and five terms, 30 years, in the Senate, McClellan is bidding for re-election, facing three opponents in the Democratic primary May 30 in what is considered his most serious challenge since 1954.

He is opposed in the primary by Congressman David Pryor, Bryant lawyer Ted Boswell and Foster Johnson, a Little Rock businessman. Waiting in the wings for the general election campaign is the Republican candidate, Dr. Wayne Babbitt, a North Little Rock veterinarian.

McClellan is the front runner, but his opponents hope to force him into a runoff and defeat him there. Both Boswell and Pryor have claimed that they will be in the runoff with the senator.

McClellan is depicted by his detractors as an arrogant, insensitive man who voted against such legislation as Social Security. As the Senate's No. 1 crime fighter, they claim, he has not stemmed the rise in lawlessness. They say he has pursued the wrong priorities with his "brick and mortar, steel and concrete concept" of progress.

Will Vote Against Measure

By JOHN LENGEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key senators supporting an end-the-war amendment say they will vote against their own measure because of a White House-backed provision requiring a cease-fire before all U.S. troops are withdrawn from Vietnam.

Tuesday's 47-43 Senate vote adding the cease-fire clause was the first congressional action on war legislation since President Nixon ordered the mining of North Vietnamese ports.

The vote added the clause to an amendment by Sens. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, that would cut off all funds for U.S. fighting in Vietnam.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, whose Foreign Relations Committee first approved the Case-Church amendment, said after losing the key vote Tuesday that he would just as soon drop the amendment for the time being.

But several backers of the amendment, meeting in the office of Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, failed to agree what course to take.

The Case-Church amendment would end all appropriations for U.S. fighting in Vietnam four months after American war prisoners are released. The language added Tuesday would allow the cutoff only if an internationally supervised cease-fire were in effect.

That requirement, Case-Church supporters contended, would keep the United States in Vietnam indefinitely to protect the Saigon government.

The new wording, said Church, "so emasculates Case-Church as to render it meaningless." He said he, like Fulbright, would vote against the amended version.

But Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., sponsor of the cease-fire proviso, said the Senate should not hinder Nixon's chances of winning a cease-fire, especially with his Moscow summit scheduled next week.

The Senate action came eight days after Nixon announced the mining of North Vietnamese ports and offered to withdraw all U.S. troops four months after a cease-fire is declared and American POWs are returned.

Pryor Hopes for Runoff

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Rep. David Pryor, D-Ark., campaigning here Tuesday for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate, said he believed "very strongly" there will be a runoff in the race.

Pryor, Foster Johnson of Little Rock, Ted Boswell of Bryant and the incumbent, Sen. John L. McClellan, are seeking the nomination.

"The myth of the power of Sen. McClellan is being cracked," Pryor said. "He is vulnerable."

Pryor said he understood that McClellan and his friends were raising more money, and the only reason he could think of for that was that they were preparing for a run-off campaign.

He said he was "terribly enthusiastic" about his campaign and "the momentum we are gaining."

Pryor said he had been told not to go to Northeast Arkansas because it was solid for McClellan, but Pryor said his rally at Jonesboro drew 3,500 to 4,000 persons. He said his rally at Helena drew about 1,000 persons and that he hoped to have 1,000 persons or more at a rally Thursday night at Fort Smith.

Pryor said the next two weeks would be interesting. "There are going to be rumors and rumors and rumors about everybody," he said. He said that a lot of money would be spent by McClellan. He said McClellan was conducting the most expensive political campaign in Arkansas history, with the exception of the campaigns of former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller.

In a radio interview Tuesday in Little Rock, Pryor said he opposed legalization of marijuana and did not think that busing to achieve racial balance would work.

Interviewed Tuesday night in Little Rock by members of the Little Rock Jaycees television program Challenge 72, Pryor was asked why he now supported a withdrawal of all American troops from Vietnam when he made a speech at the National Democratic Convention in 1968 for supporting a plank in the Democratic platform that supported the Vietnam policy of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Pryor said that when he went to Washington in 1967, he was thrown in with "people of great influence." He mentioned Johnson, Dean Rusk, Robert McNamara and others.

"I thought they knew more about it than I did," Pryor said. "I believed them for about two years." Then, he said, "all the briefings began to sound alike. Basically, they knew very little more about it than we did."

Pryor said that if President Nixon's blockade did not work, he would support an immediate unilateral withdrawal of all American troops, with the provision that the United States would immediately enter negotiations for the return of American prisoners of war.

Judge Rules for Foreman

HOUSTON (AP) — A state district court judge has ruled that Houston lawyer Percy Foreman is owed $390,700 for his work before and during a 1966 sensational murder trial in Miami, Fla.

Judge John L. Compton ruled Tuesday the money must come from Candace Mossler Garrison, a Houston socialite, and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers.

Mrs. Garrison and Powers were the defendants in the trial, charged with the murder of Mrs. Garrison's then-husband, millionaire Jacques Mossler. They were found innocent by the jury.

The judge said Foreman is still owed $140,700 of a $250,000 fee for defending Powers at the trial. He also said Mrs. Garrison owed Foreman $250,000 for his work for her between the time her husband was murdered in 1964 and the trial, at which she was represented by other lawyers.

The former Mrs. Mossler, who married Houston electrical contractor Barnett Garrison in 1971, maintained she never was represented by Foreman.

During the trial here, Foreman testified that he had an oral agreement with Mrs. Garrison that if neither she nor Powers were convicted, he would be given title to four pieces of Houston property valued at about $1.2 million in addition to his fees.

U of T Regents Sue Contractor

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas regents have sued the contractor that built the Lyndon B. Johnson Library to require repairs of defects in the building.

The suit, filed in state district court here, names T. C. Bateson Construction Co. of Dallas and the firm's bonding company, Federal Insurance Co., as defendants.

Repairs would cost more than $10,000, the suit alleges.

The regents' petition says a sealing material pulled away from the exterior stone in several places, allowing moisture to accumulate and causing "displacement following rain and freeze periods."

"Whole slabs of stone have moved vertically and horizontally, leaving an open gap of one-half to one-and-one-half inches," the suit alleges.

Cracks and slippage in the travertine marble exterior of the eight-story library and adjacent Sid Richardson Hall became evident in April he was born in and where his mother, Mary, still lives.

The 6-foot-4, 300-pound Blocker, who played the part of Hoss Cartwright on the long running series since its inception 13 years ago, moved from DeKalb to O'Donnell in West Texas when he was six. A former school teacher, he was working on a doctorate in education at UCLA when he went into acting to help support his family.

Besides his mother, he is survived by his wife, Dolphia, two sons and two daughters.

Professor Heads Presbyterians

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

DENVER (AP) — An outspoken law professor with a passion for extending Christian influence into controversial social issues took over today as head of the United Presbyterian Church.

"Before it's too late, we've got to get moving outside in this aching, messy world, ministering to it in Christ's name," said C. Willard Heckel, new moderator of the 3.1-million-member denomination.

Just before his election Tuesday night over three other candidates at the church's governing assembly, he had defended a hotly debated grant for the defense of black militant Angela Davis and denounced the Vietnam war as immoral and illegal.

"As a constitutional lawyer, I say our involvement in Vietnam is lawless," he said. "As a Christian I say it's immoral. As a former military man, I also say it's stupid."

Heckel, 59 and a bachelor, for 26 years has been on the Rutgers University law school faculty. He succeeds Lois Stair, of Waukesha, Wis., the first woman to have held the church's top post.

Heckel won a majority on a first ballot. In a period of questioning from the floor before the vote, the four were asked how they stood on the church grant to the defense of Miss Davis, an avowed Communist on trial in connection with a California courthouse shootout in which four persons were killed.

Heckel said he had made on the spot inquiries into the affair, questioning California blacks and church leaders and he added: "The right to a fair trial is something fundamental to justice in this country and the church has got to stand up for it."

Two other candidates the Rev. James R. Carroll, an Amarillo, Tex., pastor, and Frank L. Brown, a Casper, Wyo., lawyer, had criticized the grant. It was defended by the other nominee, the Rev. James E. Jones, a black Los Angeles pastor.

The church grant last year has since been returned by a coalition of black Presbyterians after churchwide conflict broke out about it. But it has continued to be a cause of sharp tensions.

Tucker Cites Barbiturate Abuse

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Pros. Atty. Jim Guy Tucker of Little Rock, candidate for Democratic nomination for attorney general, said Tuesday that in many homes some degree of barbiturate abuse is common and usually unrecognized.

He said he was concerned that abuse of barbiturates may become the top drug problem facing Arkansas. He said most Americans do not realize "the terrible consequences of abusing this drug."

Tucker was to testify today in Washington before the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency.

He said he would suggest to the subcommittee that four problem areas needed to be explored.

One, he said, is an inability to adequately identify the manufacturers of barbiturates, making it difficult to track down sources of supplies.

Tucker said another problem was the availability of the drugs through the use of forged prescriptions or prescriptions that are telephoned to pharmacies. A third problem is a lack of accurate record keeping by law enforcement and health agencies and others concerned with drug abuse, Tucker said.

He said this made it difficult to assess the degree of the drug problem.

The prosecutor said a fourth problem was a lack of adequate treatment programs, either at the federal or state levels.

$8.7 Fund Drive for St. Jude

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Danny Thomas, founder of St. Jude's Children Research Hospital, is undertaking a $8.7 million fund-raising drive to finance expansion of the facility.

Standing before the statue of St. Jude in front of the hospital, Thomas made the announcement Tuesday to newsmen, joined by Tennessee's first lady, Mrs. Winfield Dunn, and Matthew Lynch, president of the State Labor Council, which is sponsoring the drive.

Thomas described the fund-raising effort as "another outstanding example of the continuing dedication, cooperation, and support from the people in Tennessee and the nation who have made it possible for St. Jude Hospital to continue its roll of leadership in developing cures for catastrophic childhood diseases."

The drive is to be conducted throughout the state by the State Labor Council in cooperation with banking institutions in Tennessee.

Humphrey Campaign In Trouble

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's campaign appears to be in deepening trouble as the race for the Democratic presidential nomination moves west towards California's crucial primary June 6.

Short on funds, the Minnesota senator has cut back in some states to put virtually all of his resources into California, where he hopes to halt the momentum of Sen. George McGovern's drive.

If he can't, the nomination may be McGovern's.

Humphrey and McGovern meet in a head-to-head battle in the California primary, where Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama is not on the ballot. The winner of the California primary takes away 271 national convention delegate votes.

The results in Tuesday's two primaries illustrate Humphrey's increasing problems.

In Michigan, a state he carried in the 1968 presidential election, Humphrey finished a poor third, more than 100,000 votes behind McGovern, of South Dakota. He did especially poorly in blue collar and suburban areas.

In Maryland, only an overwhelming majority in Baltimore's predominantly black 7th Congressional District enabled Humphrey to finish ahead of McGovern for second place behind Wallace.

The results were the latest in a series of weaker-than-expected performances by Humphrey in the industrial heartland that was the center of his 1968 strength and promised to be so again this year.

In Pennsylvania, though the clear winner of the preference vote, Humphrey won 55 delegates to a strong showing of 39 for McGovern. In Ohio, a bare 20,000-vote statewide majority saved Humphrey from a disaster by giving him 38 at-large delegates for a total of 74, to McGovern's 66.

Only a strong showing in a black congressional district in Cleveland saved Ohio for the Minnesota senator. Similarly, black votes were responsible for his second-place showing in Florida and for the one congressional district he won in Wisconsin.

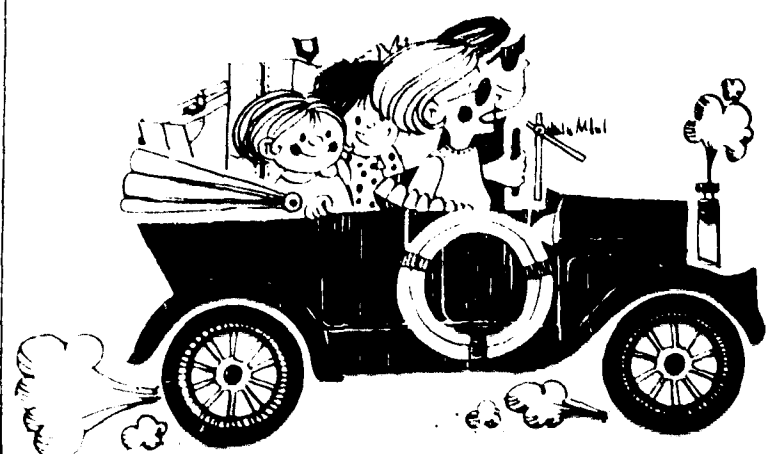

In Michigan, even his black support began to diminish. McGovern increased his share of the black vote, and New York Rep. Shirley Chisholm won some of it, too.

Ellender To Be Speaker

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — The keynote speaker Saturday for the dedication of the DeGray Dam and Reservoir here will be Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La.

The ceremony is being sponsored by the Arkadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

In South African Army jargon, recreation is known as "leisure utilization."

Ridgway Attacks Purchases

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Curtis Ridgway, coordinator of the Q Byrum Hurst gubernatorial campaign, said Tuesday that the state Commerce Department had circumvented state law in a purchase from Brandon Furniture Co. of Little Rock.

Ridgway said the department paid $481.52 for "a Carolina game table and four chairs" bought on three purchase orders. The state purchasing act requires bids on purchases of that size. Ridgway said three purchase orders were used to get around that requirement.

Richard W. Longing, director of the department, could not be reached for comment.

Ridgway said the source of his information was the state auditor's records.

Hurst, a state senator from Hot Springs, is one of five candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor in the May 30 primary.

Lawyer Says Charges Won't Stand

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The attorney for two of the three men accused of beating a state game warden admitted to the jury here Tuesday that his clients had planned and executed the beating.

W. B. Howard of Jonesboro, the attorney, contended, however, that the beating was not administered for reasons the government said it was and that the charge against his clients could not stand.

Garland Stokes, 44, and Billy S. Brown, 39, both of West Memphis, and Lanny Green, 30, of Hughes are charged with conspiring to assault a federal witness. Stokes further is charged with carrying out the alleged assault, and Brown and Green are charged with aiding and abetting in the alleged assault of warden Paige Miller of Earle on March 14.

Miller testified in 1970 against Stokes and Brown in federal District Court when the latter two men were charged with shooting doves over a baited field. The two were convicted and assessed fines.

Asst. U. S. Atty. James R. Rhodes II said in his opening statement to the U. S. District Court jury Tuesday that Stokes, Brown and Green had conspired to beat Miller because of his testimony in 1970.

However, Howard said his clients had planned and executed the beating because of "bad blood" between Stokes and Miller that existed before and after the dove hunting trial.

Approves Grant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Economic Development Administration has approved a $94,500 grant to the Gray Rock Water Users Association (Logan County), the office of Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., said Tuesday.

The association will contribute $40,500 to the project.

Votes to Ratify Treaties

By ROON LEWALD
Associated Press Writer

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's tension-easing treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland won ratification in the lower house today but the size of the votes was not enough to override possible upper house objections.

Both treaties won 248 votes from the lower house. They needed 249 to overcome objections in the upper house, controlled by the opposition.

Opposition Christian Democrats said earlier they want the upper house to give the treaties with both the Soviet Union and Poland final ratification, but hardliners within the upper house could still delay if not try to block this.

Brandt would have to bring the treaties back to the Bundestag, the lower house, for another vote if the upper house objects to them, and he would then need 249 votes for final ratification.

Huge abstentions meant that the ratification votes did not finally settle the fate of the treaties.

If the Bundesrat, which meets Friday, decides not to maintain its previous objection to the treaties, today's 248-vote decision by the lower house would stick and the treaties would be finally ratified.

The treaties, negotiated by Brandt on trips to Moscow and Warsaw in 1970, renounce the use of force and recognize German territorial losses to the Soviet Union and Poland in World War II. A series of further steps toward relaxation of tensions in Europe is dependent on acceptance of the pacts.

Final debate on the treaties in the Bundestag, the lower house of Parliament, coincided with reopening of the Berlin Wall to thousands of West Berliners for eight days of visits to East Berlin and East Germany during the festival of Pentecost.

The wall had been closed to West Berliners six years ago. The reopening is part of the improvement in East-West relations resulting from Brandt's Ostpolitik, or Eastern Policy, of which the two treaties are the keystone.

East Germany is expected to make easier travel conditions permanent following ratification of the West German treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland.

The ratification was delayed by months of debate and maneuver to gain acceptance of the treaties by the West German public and part of Brandt's conservative opponents in Parliament, the Christian Democratic party. Approval was finally assured by a split in the Christian Democrats that spelled an absolute majority for the treaties in the Bundestag.

The Christian Democrats' Bavarian wing, Franz Josef Strauss' Christian Social Union, and some back-bench conservatives continued to oppose the treaties, contending Bonn got too little in return. But a moderate group from the big port of Hamburg committed itself to giving Brandt the extra votes he needed.

Final treaty ratification should put into full effect the 1971 Berlin agreement by the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France to reduce tension over the former German capital permanently.

Its formal implementation could be announced during Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union.

The western allies and Brandt have made conclusion of a satisfactory Berlin agreement their condition for discussing the all-European security conference the Russians want, while Moscow made ratification of the treaties its condition for putting the Berlin accord into effect.

Direct Line Installed

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — A direct line to alert working operators of tornado sightings has been installed at Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. here, company officials said Tuesday.

Forrest Reynolds, manager of the company office here, said the line would enable the Police Department to tell on-duty operators of tornadoes in the area so that operators could leave their switchboards and go to the basement.

ULTRASLEEK is the word for the Soviet ultrasonic airliner, the TU-144, photographed on a runway at Sofia, Bulgaria, after a flight from Moscow.

Architect Sent Out Literature

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Little Rock architect said Tuesday that he was the source of literature recalling a dispute between a Little Rock church and state Sen. Oscar Alagood of Little Rock, who is a candidate for secretary of state.

Later, another candidate for the office, Jack Riggs of North Little Rock, identified Anderson in an unrelated statement as the only architect to Riggs' knowledge to ever receive compensation for handling state business through the secretary of state's office.

Riggs worked in the office for nine years.

Alagood said Saturday the literature contained the implication that he was antichurch.

Bruce Anderson, the architect, explained Tuesday that he had sent out the literature under his own name. "The reason I don't want Alagood elected is because he attempted to pass a state law which would prevent churches from building educational and recreational facilities," Anderson said.

In the 1971 legislative session, Alagood introduced a bill to stop the First Christian Church of Little Rock from building a gymnasium on property abutting his Little Rock residence.

The bill passed the Senate, but died in the House. The church built the gymnasium.

Alagood To Remove Signs

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Sen. Oscar Alagood of Little Rock, candidate for secretary of state, said Tuesday that he has decided to take down his signs from private yards except where he has written permission. He blamed vandalism.

Alagood said some of the signs had been stolen and nailed to trees and sometimes nailed over the signs of his opponents.

He said he was opposed to either tactic.

Alagood is one of four candidates for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state in the May 30 primary.

Fulbright Statement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said Tuesday he joined with other Americans in wishing Gov. George Wallace a speedy and complete recovery.

"I also hope that the American people can resolve to join together in an effort to bind the wounds which so seriously menace our country and our political system," Fulbright said.

He said the shooting of Wallace was a "senseless, shocking attack" that "is yet another tragic occurrence in the seemingly unending parade of violent acts which have afflicted our nation's political process."

Underdog Candidates

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Two underdog West Coast presidential candidates did better than one-time Democratic front runner Edmund S. Muskie in Tuesday's Maryland primary.

Sen. Muskie of Maine occupies a home in Maryland just across the line from Washington, D.C.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington had 17,680 votes and Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty had 13,647, compared with Muskie's 13,093 with 1,611 of the state's 1,616 precincts reporting. They were 200,000 votes behind winner George C. Wallace.

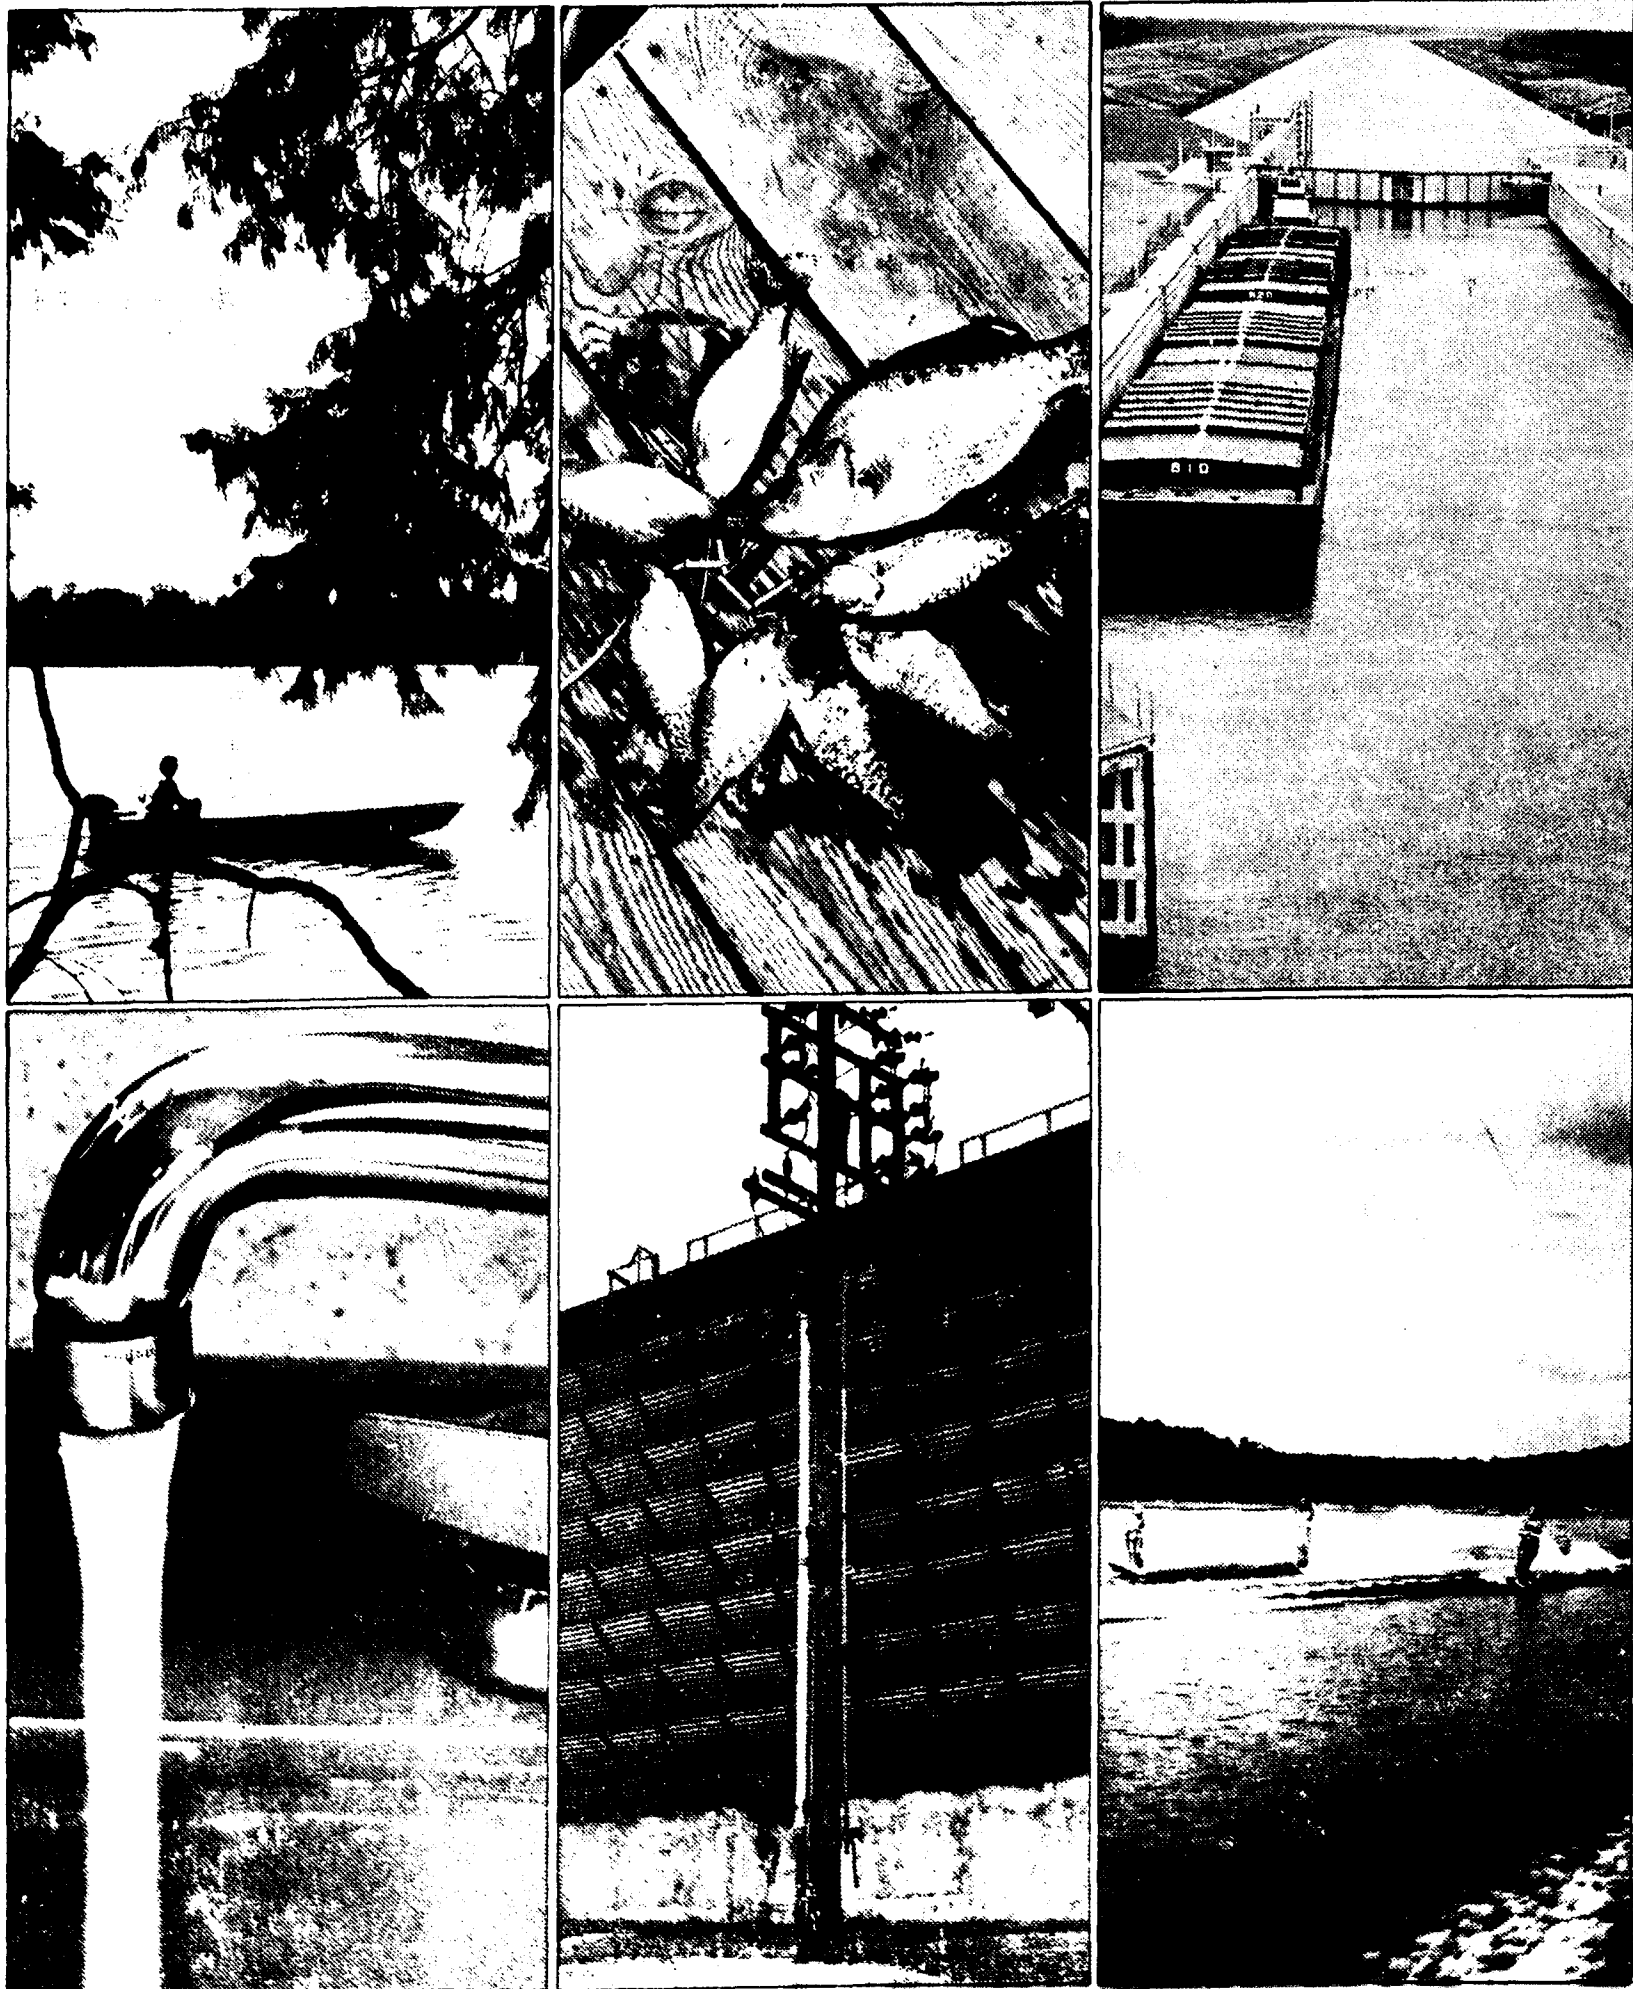

Van Buren Man Drowns

VAN BUREN, Ark. (AP) — Dale Rogers Huizer, 5, of Van Buren drowned Tuesday in a pond near his home.

Officials said they were told that the boy was on a homemade raft about 15 feet from the bank and that the raft began to sink.

Another youngster fishing nearby ran for help, but by the time a man arrived the Huizer boy had drowned, officials said.

McClellan's work holds a lot of water for Arkansas.

Water for homes. Water for industry. Water for recreation. Water for transportation. Water for today. Water for tomorrow.

Seniority is Arkansas' Asset. Let's keep Senator McClellan on the job. Getting results.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Heart Races When Patient Stands

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb: I am a 40-year-old male, married, and have been a doctor for seven years. I have been having a problem with my heart rate for some time. It is not possible to do a complete examination of the heart, but I would like to know if you are on any tranquilizing drugs you might be able to talk with your doctor about eliminating these entirely. If you happen to be taking any medicines to control high blood pressure, these too can be a factor and perhaps you should talk to your doctor about decreasing or eliminating any such medicine. If you are not taking any medicine, then you might consider using support stockings or wrapping the legs firmly with an elastic bandage from the tip of the foot well up above the knee. The use of this external pressure prevents blood from pooling in the legs and prevents the increase in heart rate and drop of blood pressure.

Dear Reader: You have what we call postural hypertension which means that when you change your position by standing up your blood pressure drops. It can follow an operation to cut the sympathetic nerves that control the size of the blood vessels in the lower part of the body. A similar type of operation was done several years ago in the treatment of individuals with high blood pressure. I am very shaky, break out in a sweat and feel nauseated. Is this problem related to my operation and what can I do about it?

Individuals who have been at bed rest for long periods of time, or those who are already ill, also have similar problems. Several illnesses and anything which affects the area in the brain that controls the sympathetic nervous system can cause this. Some drugs, particularly some of the tranquilizers, are a frequent cause and if you want to go way out so far, weightlessness. This is the exact kind of problem that concerned a lot of us as a possible complication of manned space flight. It was thought the prolonged period of weightlessness would cause the astronauts to no longer be able to adapt to the effects of gravity when they stood up. An increase in heart rate, drop in blood pressure, and even fainting, was observed in some of the astronauts after their space flight.

Couple on Opposite Sides

RIVER ROUGE, Mich. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Altenburg are running for precinct delegate in Tuesday's state presidential primary he as a Democrat; she as a Republican.

Mrs. Altenburg is committed to President Nixon. Her husband is officially uncommitted but leaning to Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

"We've agreed only twice since we were married," Mrs. Altenburg said. "Paul voted for Eisenhower once, and I voted for Kennedy."

But Altenburg may vote with his wife of 24 years again Tuesday. The couple lives in a Republican-pace precinct of this Detroit suburb, so Altenburg said he may cross over and vote the GOP ticket in an effort

Calls For Guidelines

BOSTON (AP) — The president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police has called for new legal guidelines aimed at curbing crime in the streets.

Chief George A. Murphy of the Oneida, N.Y., Police Department called Monday for creation of a 200-member committee made up of 50 judges, 50 lawyers, 50 police officials and 50 correction officials "to work out guidelines we could all understand and work together on."

"Many judges who are political appointees give long, unwarranted sentences to people whose crimes are relatively minor, and let murderers and people guilty of other serious crimes go practically free."

Labor Agreement Signed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Labor peace reigns again on West Coast docks after agreement by the longshore union and dock employees on pay scales ordered by the Pay Board.

The agreement was signed Monday, ending a period of strife that included a record 134-day strike which the White House estimated cost more than $600 million in lost American exports.

Picking Fund Winners

By CARLTON SMITH

An investment that appreciates 41.5 per cent in three months may sound like one of those well-kept Wall Street secrets that get tipped only to insiders, but it's merely a mutual fund whose shares rose that much in value during the year's first quarter.

That particular fund, it's true, is 1972's top performer thus far, but a few others performed almost as well, and the nearly 600 funds now being publicly offered have, as a group, treated investors well this year.

Average gain for 598 funds in the year's first quarter was 8.8 per cent, reports "Mutual Funds Scoreboard," published by the Hirsch Organization of Old Tappan, N.J. The top 25 funds on this list scored gains ranging from 22 to 41.5 per cent, over the three-month period.

"Growth funds—as usual in a market upswing—outpaced other funds with an average gain of 11 per cent," notes Scoreboard editor Yale Hirsch.

Now that the top funds are beginning to turn in impressive performances (assuming the continuance of a bull market), some investors are sure to return to the game of "pick the winners"—one played until the performance heyday of the funds came to an abrupt end in 1969. The current list of top performers indicates how chancy a game that is.

Among these top 25 funds, 20 are small, new funds, none more than three years old. That would seem to reinforce the belief of many fund-watchers that only a small fund has the agility needed to move "easily" and quickly into promising portfolio positions, and out of them when that's called for.

So it's temptingly true that among such funds this year's potential winners are probably to be found. But how is the average investor to identify them?

Fifteen of them aren't even listed in the daily newspaper quotations, not yet having the requisite number of shareholders or dollar assets to qualify for NASD price-listing. You can, of course, dig them out by subscribing to one of the fund information services. But once you have the names, there's little in the way of past performance records to guide you.

The fact that a fund has been a sparkler in the past three months doesn't tell you anything about what it's going to do in the next three months, or three years, because such funds—most of them—tend to bounce around like an India rubber ball.

One that's up near the top currently, for example—it shows a 30 per cent increase in share value this past quarter—suffered heavy losses in 1969 and 1970. Let's say you had owned $1,000 worth of this fund's shares at the end of 1968. On this past March 31—despite a fairly spectacular gain of 30 per cent in the first three months of the year—they would have been worth $755.

A few funds have turned in high-level performances consistently over the past few years, but most of the hot ones bounce up and down too fast for the average investor to avoid getting whacked on a down bounce. Playing "pick the winners" is seldom profitable.

As the record shows, it's the investors who have picked a dependable fund on the basis of past performance, and invested with regularity for long-term performance, who have on the whole been treated well.

Hijacking Movie Shows Bad Side

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—The tremendous impact of motion pictures on the public places a worrisome responsibility on the shoulders of responsible movie-makers. And most of them are responsible citizens. There are a few in the business who would do anything for a buck, but the majority genuinely care about the effect their product will have on the minds of the audience.

One of the responsible ones is producer Walter Seltzer. So I was surprised to learn that he was making a movie called "Skyjacked," dealing with the hijacking of a commercial plane in flight. I wondered whether the film, when it was released, might trigger another rash of real-life hijackings.

But Seltzer says he's sure that won't happen.

"All of us connected with the film," he says, "are people with a strong sense of social responsibility. Neither myself nor Charlton Heston nor Rosey Grier—none of us—would do anything to jeopardize people's lives."

Heston heads Seltzer's big cast, which also includes Yvette Mimieux, James Brolin, Claude Akins, Jeanne Crain, Walter Pidgeon and Leslie Uggams.

"The film doesn't make hijacking attractive at all," Seltzer says. "On the contrary, it shows just how bad it is for everybody. It also makes a big thing out of showing that, with the airlines, public safety is the paramount concern."

As proof of his position, Seltzer says that he was given cooperation by the FAA and the government. They let the company use planes of the New Mexico National Guard, painted to look like Russian MIGs, for scenes in which the plane is diverted toward Moscow.

The commercial airlines, however, did not cooperate. The whole subject of hijacking is, understandably, something they're most reluctant to get involved with. Seltzer got his '707 from a non-scheduled airline.

"Skyjacked" has an interesting history. It is based on a novel called "Hijacked," by David Harper. Like so many authors, Harper was disappointed in the way his publisher was promoting his book. When no movie sale was forthcoming he took ads in Hollywood's two trade papers—Daily Variety and the Hollywood Reporter—to let movie-makers know about it.

Seltzer's brother saw the ad and called Walter's attention to it. Walter bought a copy, read it, liked it and took an option on it. Then MGM agreed with him and the picture came to be.

The Egg Meets the Eye
You've heard about somebody winding up with egg on his face? It happened to Rod McKuen on his current concert tour—but this time the egg was the real thing.

In Sydney, Australia, Rod marched in a Women's Lib demonstration, with author Germaine Greer. And some of the unsympathetic Aussies pelted both of them with eggs.

That was the only downbeat moment of Rod's Down Under visit. Otherwise, the Aussies went wild over him—and he had to add four extra performances. They even shot two documentary films about his visit, for Australian TV.

Paternal Turnabout
In the new Disney film, "The Biscuit Eater," Earl Holliman plays the father of a boy whose adventures with an untrainable dog make the story. Holliman says that it looks like Hollywood has at last let him grow up.

"For years," he says, "I've been someone's son. I've been Anthony Quinn's son so many times he threatened to put me on an allowance. But now I get a chance to play the father."
